AN INTERESTING CASE IN THE FED-ERAL COURT.

A Lady Sues for Breach of Marriage Contract. SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS. Quite a number of spectators were attracted to the Federal Court room yester-day morning, to hear the testimony in the celebrated breach of marriage contract case now in progress. Mrs. Putman was promptly on hand accompanied by her counsel, ready to go on with her testimo-ny, but the defendant has not yet made his personal appearance. The examination his personal appearance. The examination was mainly conducted by Maj. Camp, as-sisted by Judge Nelson and S. T. Logan, the other counsel in the case. The plain-tiff testified that she first met Mr. Davis. the defendant, at Harmonia Hall in Washington, in the month of March, 1869. He was introduced by a Mrs. Hull, with whom she had become acquainted through her daughter, a Sunday school scholar. She went to Cincinnati according to the request she had received from Davis, and stopped there with her sister. When Davis arrived there, he called upon her at her sister's, and they had a conversation about the letter he had written her from Bull's Gap. He expressed a wish to have long conversation with her, and invited her to dine at the Burnett House, which invitation she accepted. His reason for writing to her to go to the hotel was that they would have a better opportunity to converse without interrup-tion. They had a long conversation in which she expressed her feelings, and told how she had acted upon receiving the news of his unexpected departure from Washington. He then told her that a woman was in the way, with whom he had lived, but that he would never live with her again. He urged her to forget the injuries he had unwittingly inflicted upon her, and carry out the marriage contract with him as if nothing had happened. This was on Monday, and it was arranged that he was to go on to the Cherokee Nation, settle up his affairs there, and then return to Cincinnati, when they would be married and return to Tennessee. He left and did not return for four weeks, but wrote a letter from Lafayette, Indiana, and from Springfield, Illinois, each of which had a postscript, and told of love. He wrote a third from Fort Scott, in which he wishes "good luck and a thousand kisses to you." These and other endearing terms are of frequent occurrence in the letters which were read in the Court. By this Takes this method of informing his customers time he had been removed from office and and the public generally that he has removed was expecting his successor to relieve him. East Tennessee Female Institute.

The spring session will commence on Wednesday, Jan, 24, and continue twenty weeks. The efficiency and success of this Institute are due in large measures, to the unusual ability and high character of its pupils. Good and able students, as well as efficient teachers, are necessary to make a seminary that inspires, develops and molds high character. Parents wishing for their daughters clear, sharp and quick intellects, great and good hearts and true and high ideals of self-reliant, but modest and christian womanhood, will find all the arrange-ments and conduct of this Institute steadily ar-
